Miss Westerly has been rigidly severe in her management of the mine, and there are no liquor joints within a certain radius, in fact, as far as she controls. Besides, the men employed in various positions of trust have been carefully selected, and are especially fitted for their work-most of them are temperance men, and as a natural result those they employ are to be trusted, though of course hypocrites in whom they are so deeply interested, will creep in at times; wolves in sheep's clothing.

FADING AWAY.

The High Standing of the Boys Who Wore the Blue.

Commander-in-Chief Corporal Tanner, speaking at the Grand Army campfire in Saginaw, said: "Recently the moral sense of the country has been shocked. We have seen men who stood high in the front ranks of the financiers of the country exposed and convicted of most flagrant-crimes. But take the whole disgraceful list of names, search it from top to bottom, and I defy anyone to find the name of a man who wore the blue."

If the percentage of decrease in the membership of the Michigan G. A. R. during the past two years continues, the order will pass out of existence in this state within about 16 years. Since 1900 there has been a marked increase in the annual losses. In 1901 the loss was only .01 per cent; in 1902 it was .035 per cent; the next year it rose to .05; in 1904 it was .066 and last year it was .058. The membership on January 1, 1906, was 11,560, while two years ago it was 13,168. During the past year 440 members died. There are today 340 posts in Michigan, a decrease of six in a year. These facts are shown by the annual report of the retiring department commander, Ellery C. Cannon. Financially the G. A. R. is in a prosperous condition. Mr. Cannon said:

"The G. A. R. is an organization that must grow less. It reached its hight in 1892, and has been gradually growing growing smaller ever since.

"It is a curious fact that only about one-third of the men who fought in the rebellion belong to the G. A. R. Many of the veterans claim that they cannot afford the dollar a year, etc."

Republican County Convention. The republican convention met in the Court House Monday and organized by placing H. G. Prettyman in the chair and electing John Lawson secretary. The interest of the convention centered in the election of 16 delegates to the state convention, and the committee on permanent organization and order of business went beyond their limit in trying to instruct the convention as to the method of electing them. The plan showed a residuum of Judsonism in that it was cut and dried for giving the bosses entire control. The committee reported in favor of the appointment by the chair of ten men to select the 16 delegates, but a storm of opposition arose at once, and after a spirited discussion the plan was rejected by a vote of 80 to 53 and the delegates were appointed in the usual

THEY ARE NOT OUR KIND. In discussing the heterogeneous mass of immigrants being thrown upon our shores, Mr. Broughton Brandenburg, president of the National Institute of Immigration, makes a point which is of far greater importance than either numbers or condition. "They are not our kind," he says; and when that is said everything is said concerning the influence of unchecked and indiscriminate immigration upon the permanence of our institutions. The day has gone past when there can be a shadow of pretence that these thousands of aliens seek this country for anything but the promise of big wages. They are not the oppressed seeking liberty; they have no conception of liberty that is not license; they do not understand that self-government is possible only to a people disciplined by individual self-government; their respect is not for the law but for the police. Optimists claim that a generation or two under the training of the public schools Americanizes their descendants, and port. quote the patriotic service of the foreign contingent in our army, but that by no means touches the heart of the question A man may grow up with the outer semblance of an American without being imbued by the principles on which our American civilization is founded; he may follow the flag even unto death and not comprehend the national virtues which give that flag its sacredness. Our national character was wrought out of ing a street through Henry Brown's storm and stress and generations of place for convenience of residents and struggle and hardship; these wage-seek- delivery men was referred to streets and ers are not willing to go to the frontiers and endure the conditions through which our own generation has received its sturdiest virtues. "They are not our kind." They will never be our kind. The west and the northwest are peopled by the great-grandchildren of the colonial generations; New England still exists on the Western Reserve and all through the west New England ideas permeate our institutions and our legislation. They are still in sufficient control to constitute our saving grace. The south still clings in all her better characteristics, to the traditions of the colonial times and the early days of the Republic. But can we look for the New England conscience or for southern sense of personal dignity or responsibility among the hordes which are drained from southeastern Europe "They are not of our kind." how the fire department grappled with a blaze in the Eternal City. He says: "The fire was in what we would call a grocery store. It seemed a long time before the fire department responded, but after awhile I saw a hose wagon dash around the corner. with a number of firemen standing on the running boards on each side. The wagon stopped at a hydrant, and each fireman jumped from the wagon with a little roll of hose. The first man coupled his to the hydrant, and then each man coupled his section to the preceding section. Finally they had water on the fire, and after another long period a man with a plumed hat drove up in a victoria. He was the chief. The captain of the company and the chief saluted with much cere mony, then shook hands and then held a long and dignified conversation. Finally, I suppose, the captain told the chief the grocery was on fire, and the chief acknowledged it was and complimented him on his perspicuity. Oh, yes, they finally put the fire out, and Difficult Haymaking.

Rome still stands!"

One of the most curious sights that one notices in the agricultural parts of Norway is the peculiar way of drying out the hay. On account of the extreme dampness the grass rots if left on the ground after it is mowed. Wooden drying fences that stretch for hundreds of yards across the fields are built, and every night the hay is hung out to dry, like the family wash. The sun helps along in the daytime, but it is only a half hearted help, and in the neighborhood of Bergen, where it is said to rain 364 days out of the year, the hay is almost always "on the fence." In the lake districts, where the hilly country makes means of transportation very difficult, a heavy copper wire is stretched from the top of a mountain to the village in the valley below. Down this huge masses of hav are sent sailing through the air, some times whizzing dangerously near the unwary tourist's head. - New York Tribune.

Yes, We Are Restless. "We are a restless people," observes the Sedgwick (Kan.) Pantagraph. "Every thin woman longs to be fat. Every fat woman wants to grow thin. Every town man longs for the time when he can retire to the quiet of the country, and every farmer hopes to some day quit work and move to town, where he can take life easy. Country newspaper men would like to try their hand on a city daily. The fellows on the big dailies dream of a time when they can own a paper of their own. In youth we long for maturity. In age we yearn for the happy days of childhood. There is no excuse for it other than that we all seem to be built that way. The grass seems to be just a little bit greener and thriftier most any direction from the place you occupy right now. Contentment is as near to happiness as you can get in this Boy Was a Good Listener. The Smiths were not overcautious in discussing neighbors' faults in the presence of their little son. A van one day backed up to the curb, and, much to Mrs. Smith's disgust, her boy Tommy assisted an objectionable neighbor to move. The little fellow worked hard and made himself very useful. When the last wagonload had been hauled away and the doors of the vacant house locked Tommy returned home, tired and disgusted. His mother could not reconcile the boy's early

Feminine Study of Man.

Man is when all is said a vastly lovable being and even his faults-indeed, chiefly his faults-have a most unholy attraction for us. But man the conquered is a very different creature from man the conqueror. The first is always ready and longing to afford us everything in the world we desireready to sell his immortal soul for our pleasures. The second grudges us a kind word.—A Spinster in M. A. P.

Roscoe Conkling, like John J. Ingalls, was a master at invective. Conkling, it is said, once upon a time in summing up to a jury thus attempted to belittle the testimony of a rummy faced, knobby nosed witness for the opposition: "Methinks, gentlemen, I can see that witness now, his mouth stretching across the wide desolation of his face, a sepulcher of rum and a fountain of falsehood!"

A man waiting for a street car asked e gentleman standing by, "It are time for the street car, ain't it, or have ary one went out in the last few minutes?' The answer is said to have been, "If any have went I haven't saw it."--Greensboro (N. C.) Record.

Richard Cole Newton declares that even in the early days of the Hippocratic era the art of surgery eschewed all forms of superstition and philosophical conjecture, attaining practical results by direct methods. At a very early age the profession of medicine was fully recognized in Greece and in many cases was generously rewarded. We read of swindlers and charlatans in those days too. Patent medicines were also sold. The Hippocratic oath, which for over twenty centuries has remained practically unchanged, is an evidence of the sagacity, the sense of professional honor and responsibility and the clear thinking of the Greeks. Hippocrates was born on the island of Cos in 460 B. C. A large collection of writings, evidently the work of many physicians, whose identity is unknown, has been ascribed to the pen of this leader. The Greeks were wonderfully brilliant in medical attainments, for they studied nature and her methods and shook themselves free from a monumental load of ignorance and superstition. The synchronous development of mind and body was the fundamental rule, both of health and education.-Medical Record.

The Discipline of Failure. The best skating is always on thin ice-we like to feel it crack and yield under our feet. There is a deadly fascination in the thought of twenty or thirty feet of cold water beneath. Last year's mortality list cuts no ice with us. We must make our own experiments, while Dr. Experience screams himself hoarse from his bonfire on the bank. He has held many an inquest on this darkling shore of the river of time, and he will undoubtedly live to hold many another, but thus far we have not been the subjects, and when it comes to the mistakes of others we are all delighted to serve on the coroner's jury. It isn't well for us to be saved from too many blunders. We need the discipline of failure. It is better to fail than never to try and the man who can contem plate the graveyard of his own hopes without bitterness will not always be ignored by the gods of success.-Meredith Nicholson in Reader.

Tree That Gives Light. Among freaks of nature in trees there stands conspicuous one known as the Asiatic star tree. It is enormously tall, growing to a height of from sixty feet to eighty feet, while from the ground up to a distance of about forty feet the trunk is perfectly bare. From that point there spring a number of tangled limbs, which shoot out clusters of long, pointed leaves, and it is these, grouped together, that emit at night a clear, phosphorescent light. This gives the tree a spectral appearance and is very deceiving to travelers, who frequently mistake the glow for an illuminated window of a house. The light is not brilliant, but is of sufficient strength to allow of a newspaper being read by it. It does not flicker, but glows steadily from sunset to day-

Men Who Walked on All Fours. In the kingdom of Poland there was formerly a law according to which any person found guilty of slander was compelled to walk on all fours through the streets of the town where he lived accompanied by the beadle, as a sign that he was disgraced and unworthy of the name of man. At the next public festival the delinquent was forced to appear crawling upon hands and knees underneath the banqueting ta-ble and barking like a dog. Every many kicks as he chose, and he who had been slandered must toward the end of the banquet throw a picked bone at the culprit, who, picking it up with his mouth, would leave the room on all fours.

Don't Kill the Hawk. Man has sinned more than any other animal in trifling with nature's balance. Clover crops and the killing of hawks are apparently unrelated, yet the hawks eat the field mice, the field mice prey on the immature bees, and the bees fertilize the clover blossoms. The death of a hawk means an overincrease of field mice and a consequent destruction of the bees .- Country Life In America.

Origin of "Stationer."

According to Pierre de Blois, the title "stationer" was applied to one class of bookseller long before the seventeenth century, though that may have been the period when it came to refer to any seller of books. He distinguishes between the librarii and the stationarii, who had both become so numerous in Paris in 1259 that certain regulations had to be made for their control. The former were agents for the sale and loan of manuscripts, a large sum of money being deposited when a manuscript was lent, while the latter, allowed to have stations or stalls in the markets, were sellers and copiers of manuscripts. At the time he wrote there were twenty-nine brokers and stationers in Paris, not a very dangerous number, one would think, considering that Paris from the twelfth to the fifteenth century was considered the chief seat of learning.-London Standard. Wished It Was Saturday Night.

ers, whose business for years has been done by traveling salesmen, made up his mind to call personally upon his New York city trade as an excuse to get to New York, a place he had not visited in twenty years. The gorgeous ness of the hotels made a great impression upon him. The best was none too good, as he has plenty of money and he is not afraid to spend it when away from home, so he put up at one of the palatial hostelries and had a suit of rooms. When he returned he told his friends of the magnificence of the place, the fine furniture, the beautiful decorations and the finely appointed bathroom. "Why," he said, "the floor was tiled, the walls were tiled away up to the ceiling, the tub was porcelain, there were plenty of towels, hot and cold running water, and-and -by gosh, I only wished it was Saturday night!"-Boston Herald.

The Tinsel Maker of Delhi. Here is an artist's pretty description of a tinsel maker in Delhi, India: "The silken thread from a ball under the worker's feet as he squats on the ground runs over the hook and is attached to the spindle. One rapid sweep of the latter along the worker's thigh sets it going and both the slender, supple hands are free, one for the thread, one for the reel of tinsel, which in a flash shoots upward to arm's length coiled like a snake about the spinning thread. The sunlight and the gold tinsel together flash up the yellow silken thread, seeming to set it on Coughing. "There is nothing so irritable to a cough as a cough." Constant coughing s precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body. So long as it is continued the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and benefit will soon be received from this process. The explanation simply is that the nitrogen which is thus refined acts as an anodyne to the mucous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON XIII, SECOND QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, JUNE 24.

Text of the Lesson, A Comprehensive John vii, 46-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.] LESSON I.—The two foundations (Matt. vii, 15-29). Golden Text, Jas. i, 22, "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only." God is a God of truth, Jesus Christ is the truth, the Spirit is the Spirit of truth, but there is an enemy who is the father of lies, and there is no truth in him. Deceit and lying are peculiarly his own. This enemy has many followers who talk well, but they are all talk. They say and do not.

Lesson II.-Jesus and the Sabbath (Matt. xii, 1-14). Golden Text, Ex. xx, 8, "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." There is a religiousness which is for man's approbation and yet thinks to please God. Such was that of the Pharisees, for all their works they did to be seen of men (Matt. xxiii. They perverted the Lord's days and feasts by using them for their own ends, and thus made idols of them. Jesus by His good works on the Sabbath days sought to enlighten them and give the day its right place for God and Lesson III.-Jesus' power over disease and death (Luke vii. 1-17). Golden Text. John xi. 25, "Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life' Power over all the power of the enemy, all power in heaven and earth, are His (Luke x. 19: Matt. xxviii, 20), and this lesson illustrates two phases of that power - the one dependent upon the faith of the centurion and the other seemingly without faith on the part of any one; just His own compassion for

Lesson IV.—Jesus, the sinner's friend (Luke vii, 36-50). Golden Text, Luke vii, 50: "Thy faith hath saved thee. Go in peace." Here we have a self righteous Pharisee, a sinner, but he did not know it, and a poor sinner who was very conscious of it and truly penitent. The sinner becomes truly saved and goes her way with the : of sins forgiven, while the self right eous man continues in 1.13 sins because he knew not that he needed a Saviour. LESSON V.—The parable of the sower (Mark iv, 1-29). Golden Text, Luke vili, 11, "The seed is the word of God." The Pharisees who hate! Him having decided to kill Him, He then began to teach in parables that the willfully blind might not see. This first parable and also the second, our next lesson, He emplained when alone with the disciples so fully that they had in them the key to all parables and to His purpose during this age of His rejection. LESSON VI.—The parable of the tares (Matt. xiii, 24-30, 36-43). Golden Text, Gal. vi, 7, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The seed of last lesson is in this one; those who receive that seed thus become the children of God. During this age tares and wheat, the ungodly and the godly, grow together till the end of the age at the return of our Lord. The zeal of the devil in sowing his tares should incite the children of God to more zeal.

LESSON VII.-A fierce demoniac healed (Mark v, 1-20). Golden Text, Mark v, 19, "Go home to thy friends and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee." From Gen. iii the conflict is on between the Lord and the devil for man and his inheritance, the earth, but when God became incarnate in the Son of Mary it would seem as if the devil sought to imitate this. The mystery is that, having such power, as is manifest in this lesson, He should tolerate the devil at all, but his time LESSON VIII. - Death of John the Baptist (Mark vi, 14-29). Golden Text, Eph. v, 18, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess." Here is a seeming victory for the devil in his being permitted to accomplish the death of John the Baptist, but it is only as far as human sight can see and for a brief period. The real gain was John's ((Phil. 1, 21, 23). He had the victory in being faithful unto death (Rev. ii, 10). They buried his body, not himself.

LESSON IX.-Feeding the 5,000 (Mark vi, 30-44). Golden Text, John vi, 32, "My Father giveth you the true bread from heaven." The hungry multitudes, famished in body and soul, suggest the condition of the whole earth even today. The disciples' "Send them away" is the expression of most believers, but the Lord's "Give ye them to eat" is the word for each believer now as then. LESSON X. - The gentile woman's faith (Mark vii, 24-30). Golden Text, Matt. xv, 28, "Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt." Here is another case of demon possession, a helpless little girl delivered by her mother's appeal to Jesus. There are still many demon possessed children and the very same Jesus, but where are the humble, trustful, persistently believing mothers taking their right place before Him?

LESSON XI.—Peter's great confession (Matt. xvi, 13-28). Golden Text, Matt. xvi, 16, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The sufferings of Christ and the glory that shall follow (I Pet. i, 11) are set forth here in connection with His first reference to His church, and we are taught that as the members of His body, the church, we must be content to walk with Him in sel? renunciation and humiliation.

LESSON XII. - The transfiguration (Luke ix, 28-36), Golden Text, Luke ix. 85, "This is my beloved Son; hear him." There is a reward and a glory which will far more than compensate for all the suffering we may be called upon to endure here for His sake. It will not be until the resurrection of the just, for then only will the kingdom come.

Wren-Lawrence.

A very pretty home wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Marion Lawrence June 20 at high noon when her daughter, Miss Harriet K. Lawrence, was Can't look well, eat well or feel well, married to Arthur Roy Wren of the City Mexico. The ceremony was preceded by the christening of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lawrence, Joseph Don Lawrence, Ir.

The house was beautifully decorated, the parlor with palms and marguerites and the dining room with red and white roses. The number of guests was limited to the immediate relatives and intimate friends.

Mrs. Don Lawrence sang "Beloved; it is Morn" and Miss Matilda Holmes played the Lohengrin wedding march. Rev. C. C. McIntire performed the ring ceremony. The fair bride was beautiful in a lovely gown of white chiffon cloth and lace, and carried lillies of the valley. Her maid-of-honor, Miss Grace Law-rence, wore white net over pink silk and carried pink and white sweet peas. The best man was the groom's brother, Wes-

Faculty Changes.

There will be several changes in the Normal corps of teachers next year Miss Helen Muir and Minor White will return after leaves of absence. Miss Lillian Oliff of Detroit, a graduate of the Cumnock school of oratory of Northwestern University and a teacher of experience, will succeed Miss Mary Masters, and Benjamin Pittenger, president of the present senior class and for two years on the debating team, will become assistant in the high school department and will also have direction of the literary and debating societies. Miss Julia A. King will take a year's leave of absence, devoting some time to diterary work, and no one is yet secured for the work during the year. Miss Ella Wilson of the training school will take a leave of absence to study at Cornell University. Miss Jessie B. Gibbes, who has been studying the famous Cady method of teaching piano to children under C. B. Cady of Boston, has been engaged for the Conservatory faculty to teach the children.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The High School Commencement. The Ypsilanti high school Commencement exercises were held Friday evening before an audience that taxed the large audience of the M. E. church. Supt. Arbaugh presided. The high school choir, conducted by LaVerne H Brown, rendered several delightful choruses and Miss Mary A. Dickinson played an organ solo. Rev. C. C. McIntire made the invocation. The address of the evening by Commissioner Edmond A. Jones of Massillon, O., was a sensible, practical talk to the graduates. He referred to the high reputation always held by the Ypsilanti high school and to the early opposition to state support of higher education, spoke of the way in which now the people show the greatest interest in the high school commencements and other affairs. The high school is now a vital part of our school system. This is right, for the schools train our citizens, and President Roosevelt once said to the teachers of the nation, "Had you not done your work well, this nation could not have endured beyond the span of one generation." The wealth of a state is in the character of its citizens. and the great aim of education is to produce strong, clean men. Massachusetts from the first encouraged higher education, and what a splendid place in the political and literary life of our nation has she held. Religion and education are hand in hand and are the safeguards to the general satisfaction. Miss Frances

The speaker was glad to see so many poys in the class—it is an encouraging determination to stay in school and he lege course not only because it will pay hem financially but because it will make their lives richer, fuller, happier and more useful, though it may cost sacrifice and effort to win Mr. Jones said that their study had been largely along the lines of language and literature, mathematics, history and science, and dwelt at length on the advantages to be gained from each, especially urging the familiar companionship with good books, those that stimulate to joyed, and over in good season. the higher life. The world of science is the great opportunity. The great discoveries have come almost within the span of a century, and more remarkable things are yet in store for students of

But the real end of education is the formation of character. What we do daily for twelve years becomes a part of us for all time, so if the schools teach us to be prompt, orderly, honest, loval-these will cling to us through life. The recent revelations of graft show that the schools need to emphasize good, old-fashioned honesty. Genuine success consists not so much in acquisitions for oneself as in that done for others, and the speaker closed by urging them to remember the words of Horace Mann, "Be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity.'

Supt. Arbaugh then made a graceful little speech urging the graduates not to cease their study but to broaden their knowledge and to apply what they have earned to their lives. He then presented the diplomas to 44 graduates, the class equalling the former banner class of 1000 n size. The exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. Eugene Allen.

The High School Class Day.

The senior class of the Ypsilanti high school held charming class day exercises at high school hall Thursday afternoon.

The stage was arranged with a background of interlaced tree boughs, with masses of peonies. Overhead was a canopy of red and white with a red bell hiding the chandelier. The class were holding a garden party, and punch was served during the hour to the members by Miss Ethel Deubel and Harry Shaefer, Rev. William Gardam gave the invocacation and Misses Muriel Webb and Sarah Lowden played a brilliant duet, Don S. The class orator, Walter Hoyt, is a fine speaker and his oration traced the achievements in the advancement of the world attained by our country because of "The American Spirit," which he skillfully analyzed. Mr. Hoyt's oration was a strong and able effort. Miss M. Winifred Davis cleverly handled the diffcult task of giftorian and distributed favors to her classmates that aroused many reminiscences. Platt Wood gave a dignified and worthy valedictory, and the program closed with the pretty class song written by Miss Muriel

The High School Alumni Meet.

The annual alumni banquet of the Ypsilanti high school was held in the Quirk block, the ladies of the Eastern Star furnishing an elaborate hot supper. This year was given over largely to the younger alumni who certainly attended numerously. After a lively social hour President Walter Dennison, '87, of Ann Arbor called the meeting to order, and suggested that an effort be made to obtain the addresses of all the alumni, to hold a reception at the high school Commencement day, and to establish regular quinquennial class reunions. At the business meeting the following report of the nominating committee was adopted for next year's officers: President, Delos F. Wilcox, '89, secretary of the Detroit Municipal League; vice-pres., Mrs. Anna Judd Hull, '83; sec., Lenna Shaffer, '98; exec. com., D. L. Quirk, '90, G. R. Gunn, '96, C. "This paragraph duly appeared. It was copied all over the country. The young women of America, on fire with curiosity and hope, bought and read the book in order to see if they stood any chance with Millions."

The younger novelist took out his "By Jove," he muttered. "It wouldn't hurt to resurrect that scheme.'

A formula often used to tan skins skin and scrape off any flesh that may be sticking to it. Then wash the hair side with water and soap and rinse well. Take one pound each of salt and pulverized alum, two ounces of borax dissolved in hot water, add enough rye meal (cornmeal may answer as well) to make a thick paste and spread all over flesh side. Then fold lengthwise, with the hair side out. Let remain two weeks in an airy but shaded place; then unfold, shake well and wash flesh side with water and scrape with some sort of dull scraper. Pull and stretch and work till dry. The quantity of ingredients must be in the proportions given, but the size of the skin must de termine the quantity used. CHAPTER III.

A thick mist hung over the island when, at sunrise next day, the boat with its little band of voyagers set out on the journey down the Ohio

There were none to molest them, the soldiers yet asleep after the drunken carouse of the night previous. The island in its dressing gown of fog through which the rising sun blinked stupidly, was but a dark blur between the lighter gray of river and sky. They seemed a ghostly crew setting out from the land the noiseless stream. A bleak wind of earnest winter.

Two women, pale and somber-eyed. leaned against the railing aft, watching the island recede and fade until it | The truth concerning those in official seemed a mirage caught in the long power was largely obscured by the mist shafts of growing, purple light. "I will join you in a moment,"

But, left alone, the smile died from her lips, the color from her eyes. For to this woman-no longer young, to whom worldly ambition seemed a willo'-the-wisp, "beginning again" was a task not worth while. Before her mental vision swept a swift phantasma goria in which past, present and future were strangely mingled.

She saw the home they had lately left. that spot of all to her most sacred, the home of others. On the hearth burned a stranger's fire: the old paths were trodden by other feet; her flowers were spoil for other hands.

And then fancy tried to picture the home awaiting her-that new home in the far west which her husband and son had gone to prepare, that beyond the great river they might begin life again. But between these two-the dear home she had left and the one in store, there were wild forests, yet wilder men, and that great mysterious barrier, the Mis-

But it was not in her nature to rebel at the inevitable.

Too wise in experience for high expectations, and too philosophic for despair, she had also a fine optimism, a faith in the future. And it was easier to leave now, that the old home was no longer theirs. The claim to the grant of land in the old Dominion was declared invalid, their title contested. Gradually their savings had been swept away, until, after the havoc of legal battle, no property remained. There, if fortune awaited, he could spend a few years, at last to go back, his head high, a prosperous dweller in the old haunts. If not-then let the wilderness swallow up his failure.

His wife, and daughter, too, had left Virginia, but had intended remaining on Blennerhasset island until spring. But now their friends were involved in as it unraveled, was proving perilous, perhaps disastrous.

This protection denied them, they must, nevertheless, continue the journey; but how, and under what guidance? They had little money and no influence. So far they were safe with Mrs. Blennerhasset and her party, but soon their paths diverged, and then-

TONIC TREATMENT

Weak Stomach and Sick Headache Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, others loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has quent and distressing symptom. A weak stomach needs a digestive tonic and that there is no better tonic for this purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the statement of Mr. A. C. Merrill, a mining man, of Oneals, Calif., a veteran of Battalion C, Third

U. S. Regular Infantry.
"I had never been well since I left the army," he says, "always having had trouble with my stomach, which was I was run down and debilitated Could keep nothing on my stomach, and at times had sick headache so bad that I did not care whether I lived or died. My stomach refused to retain even liquid food and I almost despaired of getting well as I had tried so many I was bitten by a rattlesnake and that laid me up from work entirely for a year, six months of which I spent in bed. "One day a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I began taking them. They cured me when all other medicine had failed. I have recommended the pills to a great many, for during my recovery every one asked me what was helping me so and I told them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I cannot speak too highly of them."

If you want good health you must have good blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and restore shattered nerves. The soloists in the Gade cantata also won individual triumphs. Miss Lorinda Smith's voice, high and pure, smooth and appealing, suited perfectly the role of the Erlking's daughter, while Mr. opportunity in the part of Oluf. Miss Benedict sang with feeling the difficult role of the mother. The Yunck string quartet, Miss Ruth Putnam and Prof. F. . York made an excellent orchestra.

The other features of the concert were also enjoyable. Prof. Pease' beautiful setting of Swain's poem, "When the heart is young" is always a favorite and was well sung by Misses Gareissen and Gilpin, Messrs. Hobart and Cook, and the chorus. Mr. William Lavin, the famous tenor, sang a group of four love songs and Pecci's beautiful "Gloria" very acceptably

The Yunck string quartet gave two lovely numbers, the exquisite Tschaikowsky "Reverie," with its haunting ong refrain, and Moskowski's dainty 'Serenata." It is some years since Herr Yunck has been at Ypsilanti, but his playing is as wonderfully sweet, expressive and masterly as ever and mellowed by time. The quartet played admirably, Prof. Pease earned hearty thanks from his audience for presenting so charming a concert at this Commencement.

The Baccalaureate Address.

The Baccalaureate service at Normal hall Sunday night was impressive and attended by an immense audience. Prof. Pease offered a fine musical program, himself playing the beautiful organ "Prelude in F" by West. The hymn "Coronation" was grandly sung, and Miss Ethelyn Walker's rich voice was beautiful in the Sullivan aria, "God shall wipe away all tears." Marshall Pease of Detroit sang the lovely aria from "St. Paul," 'Be thou faithful unto death," with rare beauty of tone and expression, and the quartet, Misses Gareissen and Gilpin, Messrs. Pease and McCullough sang superbly the lovely "Tell me, ye winged winds." Rev. A. G. Beach offered the President Jones this year took up subject of peculiar interest to teachers, "How to make moral teaching effective in the schools, or better, how to make all teaching efficiently ethical in its results, since character is the most important outcome of teaching." To prepare students to take their rightful places in society, it is needful to employ some definite means of securing intelligence concerning moral facts and relationships, and more difficult, the securing of a permanent attitude or predisposition of mind towards the performance of duties growng out of these. First is needed clear definition-much of the error of common conduct is due to the lack of appreciavices. The person of one idea cannot be called truly cultured. Moral instruction involves more than the teaching of a few fundamental moral concepts. Culture is, as Shairp says, "the drawing forth of all good that is potentially in man, the training of all his energies and capacities to their highest pitch and the directing of them to their true ends," that is, a fur her development of knowledge beyond an intellectual condition into one of changed beliefs, purposes and ideals, ooking to a clear realization of the worthy ends of life and a determination to attain some of them. The Normal Commencement.

The Normal College yesterday held ne of the best Commencements in its history. Four hundred and fifty teachers belong to the class of 1906, by far the argest ever sent out. Of these, 35 receive the degree of bachelor of pedagogy three, C. D. Carpenter of Bronson, Miss Carrie Krell of Holland, and Frank Jensen of Pentwater, the degree of bachelor of arts; and upon five eminently suc cessful teachers the college conferred the honorary degree of master of pedagogy-Dr. Charles E. St. John of Oberlin Miss Mary B. Putnam of the faculty, and Supts. J. E. Clark of Albuquerque, N Mex., Fred A. Jeffers of Atlantic Mine, and W. H. Elson of Cleveland. The program opened with a stirring organ solo by Miss Frances Strong. The Conservatory Ladies' Quartet and the Pease Men's Quartet sang several numbers. Miss Lorinda Smith played beautifully a Chopin "Scherzo."

Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, Bishop of Michigan, gave a trenchant, scholarly and inspiring address on "The Relation of Culture to Service," his text being sanctify myself that they also may be sanctified to the truth." Bishop Williams took up two processes of life, the one self regarding, the other other-regarding. In the ideal life these are equal. The self must be made as perfect and complete as possible, developed and trained to the best that is in it, but only that it may be of greater and better service to others. One set of people are consumed with zeal and good intentions but fail to realze that ability and training are necessary to reform the world. We have suffered as much from fool saints as from knaves. The aspiration to be nothing, a broken and emptied vessel, as the hymn says is easy of attainment but neither the Lord nor any one else has any use for broken crockery. One owes it to one's self and to the world to prepare thoroughly for one's life work. But too many educated people forget the obligation of service placed upon them by their very privileges; they hold themselves aloof from the common crowd and turn to self indulgence in the cultured life. This will soon destroy character and happiness. Knowledge without zeal, efficiency without the desire to use it for others, is as bad as the other way. Wealth and culture must be, not given as charity, but shared to be enriching to either giver or receiver. Make of yourself all you can, enjoy all you can, and those about you.

A Fine Exhibit.

A feature of the Normal Commencement that is attracting great attention is the exhibit made by the departments tion, which was issued in New York of domestic science and manual training. The work done by the children from the first grade to the high school is amazingly clever. After the children become a little familiar with the work they make their own patterns and designs. In manual training the work ranges from simple pen-holders and plant sticks whittled out, through bread boards, cup racks, ident Buchanan, Edward Everett, Hencandlesticks, lamp shades and many other useful articles to quite elaborate furniture, book racks, clock cases and Barrett Browning, Alexander von stools. The big doll house made by the Humboldt, James G. Bennett and sevfirst grade is completely furnished in kitchen, dining room, library and bedroom. The little folks not only made the furnishings but daily care for and rearrange them. A set of architect's plans "Moon Hoax," published in 1835. Crawford-Wilson.

The marriage of Miss Cora Wilson, who has been a popular teacher in the public schools, to Samuel E. Crawford took place last evening at the bride's home. Rev. C. C. McIntire performed the ring ceremony, Miss May Jenkins of Saginaw acting as maid-of-honor and Roy Herald of Detroit as best man. Miss Isca Schaffer carried the ring in a pinh rose. Miss Mary Dickinson played the Mendelssohn wedding march. The bride was prettily gowned in gray crepe de chine trimmed with lace, and carried pink roses. The maid-of-honor wore mode crepe de chine with embroidery. After the ceremony while refreshments were being served the bride and groom cleverly eluded their friends and escaped to the train. They will take a trip down the St. Lawrence, and will reside in Ypsilanti. Both were prominent Normal students and have many friends in this
